DERBY HERO LAMMTARRA DIES

Sheikh Mohammed's triple Group 1 winner Lammtarra (Nijinsky--Snow Bride, by Blushing Groom {Fr}) was euthanized Sunday at Darley's Dalham Hall Stud in Newmarket, England at the age of 22 after battling a short illness.

Lammtarra at Dalham Hall
Darley

Bred in Kentucky by Gainsborough Stud and raced in the colors of Sheikh Mohammed's nephew, Saeed Maktoum Al Maktoum, Lammtarra pulled off a remarkable feat in winning three of Europe's most important races in just four career starts. The chestnut took Newbury's Listed Singer S. on debut at Newbury in his lone 2-year-old outing in 1994 while in the care of trainer Alex Scott. Scott was shot dead six weeks later, after which Lammtarra wintered in Dubai and was turned over to Saeed bin Suroor. Lammtarra returned to England the following year to capture the G1 Epsom Derby in just his second start on his seasonal debut, smashing a 60-year-old stakes record that stood until Workforce (GB) (King's Best)'s seven-length romp in 2010. Lammtarra became the first Derby winner sired by a Derby winner and out of an Oaks winner, a feat that was accomplished for the second time by this year's Investec Derby hero Australia (GB) (Galileo {Ire}).

Partnered by Frankie Dettori for the first time next out in the G1 King George VI and Queen Elizabeth II Diamond S., Lammtarra kept his unbeaten record alive, and retired on top with a victory in the G1 Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe.

Initially retired to Dalham Hall, Lammtarra later relocated to Japan and returned to Dalham Hall to see out his retirement. He is the sire of six black-type winners.

"I was very sad to hear of the passing of Lammtarra," said bin Suroor. "He was a true champion and one of the best horses that I have trained. His victories in the Derby, King George and Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe were exceptional, and he will be remembered as an outstanding horse for generations to come."

Darley Stud Director Liam O'Rourke added, "Lammtarra was a horse that was very close to Sheikh Mohammed's heart. He was very intelligent, a true gentleman and never gave anyone a moment's trouble. Sadly, this was his time to go, and we are pleased that he passed away comfortably. He will be missed by everyone here at Dalham."

DARLEY BUYS SLADE POWER

Last month's G1 Diamond Jubilee S. winner Slade Power (Ire) (Dutch Art {GB}--Girl Power {Ire}, by Key of Luck) will stand at Kildangan Stud in Ireland next year after being purchased by Darley. The 5-year-old will remain in training with Eddie Lynam for the remainder of 2014 and continue to race in the colors of his breeder, Sabena Power. Slade Power will take in Saturday's G1 July Cup, and his end of season target is the G1 VRC Sprint in Australia in November. "Slade Power is an incredibly tough racehorse who consistently performs at the highest level," said Joe Osborne, managing director of Darley Ireland. "He's the Northern Hemisphere's best sprinter and, with a physique to match, he'll be a popular addition to our roster when he retires to stud at Kildangan at the end of the year." The winner of the G3 Sapphire S. and G3 Phoenix Sprint S. at The Curragh last summer, Slade Power rounded out the European season with a victory in the G2 Qipco British Champions Sprint S. in October. Tenth in the G1 Hong Kong Sprint Dec. 8, he prepared for his Royal Ascot score with a win in The Curragh's G3 Greenlands S. May 24.

EPSOM CONSIDERING EVENING DERBY SLOT

Epsom Downs officials are reportedly considering pushing the G1 Investec Derby to an evening time slot in an attempt to combat a decline in television viewership. The Channel 4 broadcast for the June 7 edition of the Derby peaked at 1.55 million viewers--less than half the figure that the BBC achieved when it last hosted coverage in 2012.

"We may decide to innovate," Rupert Trevelyan, managing director at Epsom, told The Times. "I've never ruled anything out, and staging the race later in the evening could be considered. The broadcasters tell us that every hour later could be worth an extra million viewers."

Trevelyan noted that the attendance of The Queen would be crucial in the decision-making process.

"The presence of the Queen is paramount, and she will be consulted before we make any such change," he said. The world's oldest Classic has endured scheduling changes in the past. Twenty years ago, the Derby was moved from its traditional Wednesday slot to Saturday.

Australia after winning this year's Investec Derby
Racing Post

Trevelyan noted that this year's Derby achieved a record on-course attendance.

Two-time Derby-winning trainer John Oxx said that scheduling changes for the Irish Derby have had some positive effects.

"I wouldn't have a strong view on whether it would be the right thing for Epsom to do," the Curragh-based trainer said. "It's a slightly different situation in Ireland, as they moved the race from a Sunday to a Saturday evening. On one hand it was perhaps the viewing figures, but it has also helped them get an improved corporate response." Oxx added, "A lot of the old school would say when the Epsom Derby was on a Wednesday it clashed with nothing. It was a day off and a big event for everybody. Some people would say the problems started when they moved it to a Saturday, but I don't know. I'm sure they had good reasons for doing it. That's just the way things are going now. Royal Ascot finish up on a Saturday now, and you get a different crowd, but it's their biggest crowd of the week."

David Williams of Ladbrokes noted that it would be important for Epsom to avoid clashes with other sporting events.

"I would encourage them not to do it next year, because it would clash with the Champions League Final," said Williams. "That is very late next year, as it's the World Cup this year. Racing has to understand that when it goes head-to-head with big football events it comes off second-best."

Williams added that, as a rule, he would support innovation that could improve viewership and betting participation.

"Generally, we would welcome anything that looks like reinvigorating viewing figures," he said. "If you can create a narrative on a sporting day where there is a climax later in the day, it is a good thing for betting purposes. We have often found if you put your feature race later in the day, there is better turnover all through the day."

RACETRACK ROUND-UP

'MOON' FINE AFTER DEUTSCHES ROMP

★ "TDN Rising Star" ★ Sea the Moon (Ger) (Sea the Stars {Ire}), the 11-length victor of Sunday's G1 Deutsches Derby, has emerged from the race in good order, according to trainer Markus Klug. The Cologne-based conditioner noted the unbeaten colt's next start would likely come on home turf in the G1 Grosser Preis von Baden Sept. 7.

"That's the plan," Klug said. "He will have a break, then he will go to Baden-Baden and then perhaps to the [G1 Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe Oct. 5]. It was a fantastic performance on Sunday. The horse is well--he's at home, and everything's alright."

Sea the Moon, a son of 2009 Arc hero Sea the Stars, was cut to around 8-1 with most bookmakers after Sunday's win, making him the general third choice. The Gestut Gorldorf homebred would have to be supplemented to the Arc, however, at a cost of €120,000. He is also unlikely to get the services of Christophe Soumillon, who piloted him for the first time in the Deutsches Derby, as Soumillon is contracted to the Aga Khan.

"If the horse goes into foreign countries, say for the Arc, then Christophe Soumillon must ride for the Aga Khan, so it is difficult to get him for Sea The Moon in France," Klug explained.

BACK TO A MILE FOR GUINEAS WINNER

G1 2000 Guineas winner Night of Thunder (Ire) (Dubawi {Ire}) is likely to revert back to a mile after failing to see out the distance of the 1 1/4-mile G1 Coral-Eclipse Saturday, where he finished eighth.

"Before the race I was confident he would get the trip, and we rode him to stay," trainer Richard Hannon told the Daily Mail. "But he didn't really finish his race off. I think from now on it is back to a mile."

Hannon noted that the Saeed Manana colorbearer would get a break, and likely resurface in the G1 Prix de Moulin at Longchamp Sept. 14.

SECRET HEART, DAM OF PLUCK, DIES

Secret Heart (SAf) (Fort Wood--Secret Pact {SAf}, by Bush Telegraph {SAf}), the dam of 2010 Breeders' Cup Juvenile Turf winner Pluck for Team Valor International, was found dead in her stall Saturday morning at Denali Stud in Paris, Kentucky. A cause of death has not been determined. At the time of death, the 15-year-old, who was in foal to Point of Entry (Dynaformer), had a colt by Medaglia d'Oro at her side.

"She was the ideal mare," said Team Valor CEO Barry Irwin, who imported Secret Heart from her native South Africa in 2004 and considered her to have the best pedigree in the stable's band of 28 broodmares in the U.S., Ireland and South Africa. "She had speed, she had size, her pedigree improved every year and her first foal was sensational. This is a hard one to swallow."

A dual Classic winner in South Africa, Secret Heart--a half-sister to Group 1 winner Covenant (SAf) (Western Winter)--placed in the U.S. before retiring to the breeding shed. Her first foal--Pluck (More Than Ready)--won the GIII Summer S. before taking the GII Breeders' Cup Juvenile Turf at Churchill Downs. Pluck now stands for Vinery in Australia. For Team Valor, Secret Heart also produced the graded-stakes placed Three Hearts (Hat Trick {Jpn}). A 2-year-old full-brother to Pluck sold for $210,785 in the Tattersalls breeze-up sale in Newmarket, England, in April.

A WINTER'S DAY AT SUMMERHILL

Story and photos by Liesl King

Cold, colder, coldest. Welcome to the Summerhill Stallion Day. Traditionally held the day after the G1 Vodacom Durban July, Summerhill's Stallion Day is a veritable United Nations on the beautiful stud situated just outside Mooi River at the foot of the Drakensberg Mountains. It is this last part that guests need to pay careful attention too. Mountains, especially high ones in KwaZulu Natal, have snow on them in winter. Lots of it.

Summerhill's Mick Goss addresses the crowd

Fortunately for most, the storm that blew in as the race day was winding up gave fair warning of what was to come. Yet while Durban dropped to a comfortable 15 degrees celsius, Mooi River had dropped to four, something we only discovered upon arrival as the car door let in a blast of icy air. That meant a scurry for those carefully packed suitcases, hunting for scarves, hats and gloves--in fact, anything that could possibly keep the biting cold out.

Thankfully, Summerhill Stud owner Mick Goss is the consummate host, and as guests hurried past the welcome singers to the convention center they were greeted with a pile of furry blankets, hot coffee and a giant log fire merrily burning. Slowly defrosting, I must admit that when we were requested to brave the outdoors again for the stallion parade, the idea was not very appealing. Hence, if it wasn't for my desire to see Await The Dawn (Giant's Causeway) in his new role as a stallion, I may have politely declined.

Guests were seated on hay bales and horse blankets safely under the cover of a Bedouin tent as the rain threatened, but thankfully stayed away. Unfortunately, my desire to bring the world some pictures of Summerhill's stunning stallions meant I had to ditch the gloves and the comfort of the tent and head for the windswept lawn.

Ato

Summerhill's latest arrival, Ato (SAf) (Royal Academy), was first up, and the G1 Krisflyer Sprint winner was understandably keyed up when he saw the waiting crowds. He must have been convinced he was back on the racecourse. Cont. p7

Golden Sword (GB) (High Chaparral {Ire}), on the other hand, is by now an old hand, and posed beautifully for the appreciative crowd. When Await The Dawn (Giant's Causeway) finally appeared, I was pleased that I had braved the cold, despite by now having numb fingers. He is just in a class by himself, and it came as no surprise that he already has a full book for his first season.

Zulu dancers

Then it was the turn of the unruly bunch. Mullins Bay (GB) (Machiavellian) did his usual grand entrance on his back legs, and Solskjaer (Ire) (Danehill) promptly followed his example. Admire Main (Jpn) (Sunday Silence) is a showman of note as well but preferred to show his beautiful collected trot, tail flying. Visionaire (Grand Slam) may have come from the land of winter snow, but with the temperature continuing to drop he looked like a fire-breathing dragon as he came out on parade with clouds of steam erupting from his nostrils.

All the while the troupe of Zulu dancers were patiently waiting, clad only in their traditional clothing of loin cloths and bits of sheepskin. Considering I was wearing at least four layers, I was mightily impressed by their ability to handle the dropping temperatures. Yet once they started dancing the cold was immediately forgotten, as their performance was as exhilarating as it was breathtaking. It came as no surprise when Goss announced that the dancers had been asked to perform at the Edinburgh Military Tattoo.

Finally, Queen Masenate Mohato Seeiso from the Kingdom of Lesotho performed the traditional sabrage, sending the cork of a bottle of Pierre Jourdan flying with one deft sweep of the sabre, and it was time for lunch. Hartford House is renowned for its cuisine and, if lunch was anything to go by, their reputation is well deserved. Of course, it was certainly helped by the superb L'Ormarins wines on the tables. The stallion service auction was deftly handled by auctioneer extraordinaire Graeme Hawkins and before we realized the afternoon had flown by, the snow was threatening to fall and the day was over.

It would never have been right to dismiss the Deutsches Derby as a parochial affair, even in the days prior to 1993 when the race was confined to horses trained or reared in Germany. Those pre-1993 winners featured numerous colts who helped shape the modern German Thoroughbred, including the 1977 scorer Surumu, the 1979 Triple Crown winner Konigsstuhl and the 1985 hero Acatenango.

Of course opening the race to international competition hasn't guaranteed that every edition of the Deutsches Derby is out of the ordinary. However, the 2012 race was definitely special. With a desperate late surge, Pastorius snatched a half-length victory over Novellist and Girolamo. All three principals went on to G1 success, with Pastorius notably taking the Prix Ganay and Novellist both the Grand Prix de Saint-Cloud and the King George.

In other words, the Deutsches Derby can represent top international form. So what do we make of Sea the Moon, the unbeaten colt who galloped his way to an 11-length triumph two days ago? The omens are good. Surumu, who trotted up by seven lengths back in 1977, went on to be Germany's champion sire six times. Samum, a five-length winner in 2000, became champion sire with his first 3-year-olds and Shirocco, a four-length winner in 2004, later found international fame as a winner of the Breeders' Cup Turf and Coronation Cup. The only other wide-margin winner of recent years was Adlerflug, whose first crop contains Wunder, an unbeaten filly whose victory in the G3 Prix Chloe makes her a leading contender for Germany's Oaks, the Preis der Diana.

Sea the Moon's victory will focus even more attention on his sire Sea The Stars, a brilliant racehorse who is proving similarly impressive as a stallion.

In addition to a Deutsches Derby winner, his first crop has produced an Oaks winner in Taghrooda and a Prix du Jockey-Club runner-up in Shamkiyr. Altogether, this initial crop has produced five group winners, each with a different broodmare sire.

The broodmare sire of Sea the Moon is Monsun, whose status as arguably the most important German stallion of recent decades reflects the fact that he has made a considerable impact on the Deutsches Derby. Oddly enough it was in this German classic that this son of Triple Crown winner Konigsstuhl suffered one of his defeats: after leading with only a quarter of a mile left to race, Monsun was worn down in the closing stages by Lando, future winner of the Japan Cup.

Monsun made ample amends for that Hamburg defeat, which was one of only two losses during an impressive eight-race 3-year-old campaign. He rounded off his sophomore year by galloping his Europa-Preis opponents into the ground in very testing conditions.

The official handicappers considered Monsun to be less than seven pounds inferior to the year's best British middle-distance 3-year-olds and he did even better at four. He ended 1994 officially rated only four pounds below Hernando and White Muzzle, the top older performers in the 11 furlong-plus category. He owed his high rating to a series of very smart performances over a mile and a half, including a second decisive victory in the G1 Europa-Preis.

A brief 5-year-old campaign boosted Monsun's total of group victories to eight, after which he retired to the Gestut Schlenderhan of his owner, Baron Georg von Ullman. In topping the German sires' list on four occasions, Monsun went one better than his sire Konigsstuhl, whose top winners included the Deutsches Derby winners Lavirco and Pik Konig.

Once again Monsun has gone one better than his sire, achieving a hat-trick of German Derby winners. One of those winners has gone on to sire a Deutsches Derby winner and now it seems to be the turn of Monsun's broodmare daughters to extend the great stallion's influence on the Hamburg classic. Sea the Moon is the third consecutive winner of the Derby with a dam by Monsun, her predecessors being Pastorius in 2012 and Lucky Speed last year.

Significantly, Sea the Moon's unraced dam Sanwa is a sister to two of Monsun's Derby winners, namely Samum and Schiaparelli.

Headline News..... 9 pages

As a member of Monsun's first crop, Samum was largely responsible for highlighting Monsun's potential. Not only did he take the Derby by five lengths but he then won the G1 Grosser Preis von Baden to improve his record to six wins from as many starts. However, he lost his unbeaten record in the Arc and never won again, despite staying in training at four and five. In common with plenty of other German stallions, Samum hasn't covered anything like the same numbers of mares as his British and Irish counterparts, to the extent that there are only 318 foals in his first nine crops. However, he too has sired a Deutsches Derby hero in Kamsin, the 2008 winner who was recently represented by his first stakes winner.

A look at Sea the Moon's pedigree shows why the colt's rider, Christophe Soumillon, was so confident about his mount's stamina. Sea the Moon's famous second dam, Sacarina, was sired by Old Vic, a formidable galloper who trounced the opposition in both the Prix du Jockey-Club and the Irish Derby. Unfortunately, Old Vic proved much less effective as a sire of flat performers, but his numerous good steeplechasers included Comply Or Die and Don't Push It, two winners of the Grand National over 4 1/2 miles.

Plenty of stamina also emerged in Schiaparelli, the other Derby-winning brother to Sea the Moon's dam. Although Schiaparelli went on to victory in four more Group 1 events over a mile and a half, he also stayed well enough to take the G2 Goodwood Cup over two miles and the G2 Prix Kergorlay over a furlong less. His stamina virtually ruled out his chances of becoming a flat stallion, but he has a lot to offer Britain's jumping breeders.

Sanwa has another Classic-winning sibling in Salve Regina, who landed the Preis der Diana in 2002 after finishing second in the Deutsches Derby. The quality of this family is also reflected in the achievements of Sacarina's broodmare daughters. Salve Regina has a Grade II winner to her credit in Salve Germania (Ballston Spa H.), but she has yet to achieve the Group 1 distinction already achieved by three of Sacarina's other daughters.

Racing UK video joins our existing AT THE RACES video, giving you the most comprehensive European video in the industry!

In addition to Sanwa, they are Sahel, another Monsun mare who produced the Italian Group 1 winner Sortilege and Sasuela, a Dashing Blade mare who produced the German Group 1 winner Seismos.

It is strange to think that Sea the Moon's third dam, the Ridan mare Brave Lass, was once one of the cheaper mares at Jim Joel's 1986 dispersal, at 40,000gns. However, she had won four of her five starts at two to earn a Timeform rating of 114.

Brave Lass had German Classic connections, as her dam Bravour, Germany's best 2-year-old filly of 1965, won the 1000 Guineas and was third in her country's Oaks, a race once won by her half-sister Brisanz.

Sea The Moon's sire Sea the Stars also has some German blood. His second dam, the celebrated Allegretta, was bred by Gestut Schlendhan and Allegretta's second and third dams were both daughters of Deutsches Derby winners (Birkhan and Magnat respectively). Alya, a sister to Allegretta, is the second dam of Adlerflug, the 2007 Deutsches Derby winner.

So Sea the Moon has a truly classic background and the style of his Hamburg victory suggests that it is far from impossible that he'll emulate his sire's Arc victory.

O/B-Don Amos (ON). T-Daniel J Vella.

When longshot Niigon's Queen came home a 25-1 longshot winner of her debut at Woodbine Sunday, industry insiders likely recognized the name of her owner/breeder, longtime Magna Entertainment executive Don Amos. Now 70 and enjoying retirement in Georgian Bay, Ontario, Amos was almost as surprised as everyone else at the filly's victory.

"I bet $20 across the board on her, but I didn't think she was going to win," Amos chuckled. "She had been having trouble getting out of the gate, but that got fixed pretty quickly. I couldn't believe how easy she did it. I was very pleased."

In the winner's circle with Niigon's Queen
Michael Burns

Amos currently has 12 horses in training, but Niigon's Queen is out of his only broodmare, the 21-year-old Queen of the Ice. Amos co-bred and raced Queen of the Ice, who won the 1996 Ontario Colleen H. She has also produced stakes-placed Carysfort Light (Red Bullet). The mare was bred to Sky Conqueror this year.

Amos credits his father with his love of racing.

"My dad took me to everything horse related," he recalled.

Amos held various positions at Magna International and served as the company's Executive Vice President of Administration and Human Resources from 1994 until 2000. But Magna chief Frank Stronach had other plans for him.

"I was head of human resources, but Frank wanted me to go into the horse business," Amos said. "He knew I knew the horse business and that's why he wanted me. I was forced to do it, but I didn't want to do it."

Amos served as Magna Entertainment's chief operating officer from 2003 until he retired in 2006.

While Amos is savoring Niigon's Queen's victory, he's not tempted to increase his racing stable anytime soon.

"It's a difficult business and unless you have success it's pretty tough," he explained. "But this filly Sunday, that was a real blessing." -Jessica Martini
