CASTLEMARTIN STUD SOLD; MALONE RUMORED BUYER

Sir Anthony and Lady Chrissy O'Reilly's Castlemartin Stud near Co. Kildare, Ireland, has been sold, with American businessman John Malone the rumored buyer. Less than a week ago, Malone purchased Ballylinch Stud. The Irish Times reported yesterday that Malone was near to closing a deal on the historic 750-acre property. Paddy Jordon of Jordan Auctioneers, joint-selling agent with Knight Frank, confirmed to the TDN that the property was sold, but could not name the buyer or the price. Jordan Auctioneers and Knight Frank had been quoting in excess of €30 million through a private-treaty sale process.

Castlemartin Stud went on the market in October, three months after Allied Irish Bank entered a judgement of €45 million against O'Reilly and two of his investment firms. It is reported that O'Reilly's debts, incurred following losses from Waterford Wedgwood and the Independent News and Media newspaper group, stood at the time at €195 million. Cont. p7

SIMULCAST IMPASSE CONTINUES

by T.D. Thornton

At the three-week mark, the ongoing contractual standoff that is keeping the Gulfstream Park simulcast signal from a cooperative representing 23 racetracks and simulcast centers is now threatening to disrupt the distribution of races from Santa Anita Park unless a deal can be struck before California's premier winter meet opens Dec. 26.

Monarch Content Management (a simulcast purchase and sales agent owned by the Stronach Group) and MidAtlantic Cooperative, L.L.C. (which negotiates group rates on behalf of individual simulcast outlets from Texas to New Hampshire) have been deadlocked over the signing of a new contract since Dec. 1.

The dispute centers primarily on the fees Monarch wants to charge in exchange for the right to bet on signals it either owns or distributes.

A secondary stalemate centers on Monarch's insistence on charging a higher rate to simulcast facilities that conduct little or no live Thoroughbred racing. The MidAtlantic co-op, comprised of both active tracks and simulcast-only venues, is standing firm on a same-fee-for-all-members resolve, even though some partners in the group did not hold any live Thoroughbred racing in 2014. Cont. p3

EL KABEIR ON TARGET FOR JEROME

by Ben Massam

Zayat Stables' El Kabeir (Scat Daddy), "TDN Rising Star" and recent winner of the GII Kentucky Jockey Club S. at Churchill Downs, came out of that effort well and is being pointed toward a start in the GII Jerome S. at Aqueduct Jan. 3, according to trainer John Terranova, II. The colt registered a six-furlong breeze yesterday morning over the Belmont Park training track, covering the distance in 1:15.36.

El Kabeir
Adam Coglianese

"We are targeting the Jerome at Aqueduct Jan. 3. That's where he'll more than likely make his next start," offered Terranova. "We had discussions with the Zayat family and thought this was the right move. The timing is good, and the 3-year-old stakes program early in the year in New York has been boosted a lot with the races leading into the [Mar. 7 GIII] Gotham and the [Apr. 4 GI] Wood."

The trainer said that his colt's training has been ideal since winning his two-turn debut at Churchill Nov. 29.

"Everything's been good," Terranova said. "We sent him back to Belmont from Churchill the day afterwards and so far he's been doing really well. [Yesterday] was his second breeze back." Cont. p3

El Kabeir on Target for Jerome (cont. from p1)

El Kabeir broke his maiden in his second start at Saratoga going seven furlongs Aug. 30, setting the pace through a scorching half-mile in :44.98 before drawing off to win by 10 3/4 lengths. He followed with a fourth-place finish in the GI Champagne S. and a runner-up effort in the GI Nashua S., both at a one-turn mile distance. Terranova explained that managing El Kabeir's natural speed has been a unique task.

"Two races back in the Nashua, we had put blinkers on him, and that was probably a mistake," he acknowledged. "He got a little too keen with them and wasn't able to give himself a breather on a tiring track that day, also running into a big head wind."

With that experience under his belt, Terranova believes the colt's victory at Churchill was a significant milestone in the development process.

"I think he ran a pretty demanding race at Churchill. A lot of days, it's hard for horses to go wire-to-wire there with the long stretch, and it wasn't exactly a lightning-fast track that day," the conditioner noted.

"Calvin [Borel] laid a great ride on him," Terranova continued. "He got him to switch off and relax a bit. He does have that speed, but we're happy he was able to stretch out."

Terranova continued, "Taking [blinkers] off, shipping and going two-turns was a big test, a big hurdle that he got through. Hopefully with physical and mental maturity, he will be able to relax and we'll see how far he can carry it."

Barring any severe winter weather in New York, the trainer explained that El Kabeir's path to the Jerome is relatively simple at the moment.

"He'll work one more time--something easy next weekend, and he'll be good to go," Terranova said.

In addition to Gulfstream and Santa Anita, other currently active signal exporters represented by Monarch include Golden Gate Fields, Laurel Park, Turf Paradise and Portland Meadows.

On Monday, neither side ruled out a deal being struck before opening day at Santa Anita. "Honestly, everything in the discussion can be negotiated," said Phil O'Hara, executive director of MidAtlantic.

"We did reach out to the MidAtlantic just today and told them that, as long as they're willing to abandon their one-size-fits-all approach, we'd be happy to pick up discussions with them," said Scott Daruty, president of Monarch. Cont. p4

"If we feel we're optimistic about getting close, we could even put a temporary deal in place for them to take signals," Daruty continued.

The last substantial gambit was a Dec. 8 counter-proposal by MidAtlantic.

"I've spoken to them twice since then and there just hasn't been any movement yet," said O'Hara. "The only response we got was they were going to stick to their [original] proposal. Right now we don't have an agreement."

When asked what message he would like to deliver to horseplayers caught in the crossfire of the dispute, O'Hara said, "We really regret that we don't have the content. But at the same time, the rates that have been proposed are unacceptable."

O'Hara said he could not cite specifics on the amount of revenue MidAtlantic members have lost because December storm cancellations from 2013 make year-to-year business comparisons difficult.

But with the contractual unavailability of the Monarch-controlled signals, plus an entirely unrelated void in the national racing calendar with Aqueduct in the midst of a 10-day holiday break, simulcast pickings are currently slim from coast to coast.

"Every dollar that gets sent out of the region [has an impact on] horsemen, purses and breeders' funds," O'Hara said.

Daruty said he'd "rather not comment" when asked if fragmented entities from within the MidAtlantic co-op have approached Monarch about splitting from the co-op to pursue individual deals.

O'Hara said he knows of no instance in which a member association has sought to negotiate solo.

TDN obtained an internal update that O'Hara sent to co-op members Dec. 17. In Monday's phone interview, O'Hara confirmed the contents of that memo, which read, in part:

"The MidAtlantic proposal was for multiple years, to ensure stability and deter future disruptions...We are disappointed that Monarch has chosen to not even respond with any counter offer or engage in any meaningful negotiations since our last proposal...In addition, the MidAtlantic asked Monarch to specify, in writing, the terms of an extension during this negotiation period; despite repeated public claims Monarch would offer such an extension, none has been offered in writing to date."

O'Hara said not to presume the Christmas break means a deal can't be reached before the first race at Santa Anita. "The lines are absolutely open," said Daruty.

BEHOLDER READY TO RESUME TRAINING

Two-time Eclipse champion Beholder (Henny Hughes) is nearing a return to training after making a complete recovery from the fever which knocked her out of the GI Breeders' Cup Distaff. Trainer Richard Mandella reported x-rays of the 4-year-old filly's lungs "were perfect." "I've sent her to Julie Adair Stack's facility in Chino," Mandella said. "She'll be there a couple weeks just to get the edge off and get started back jogging. Then I'll bring her back. She looks like $10 million."

LOS AL MEET SHOWS GAINS

Los Alamitos concluded its first Winter Thoroughbred meet Sunday, showing an increase in out-of-state handle from its fall meeting. The daily total combined mutuel handle averaged $5,640,866.

"This meet did exactly what we hoped it would do in that we continued to show growth, most particularly in out-of-state handle," said Brad McKinzie, vice president and general manager of the Los Alamitos Racing Association.

"Through Saturday, we were up over $320,000 a day out of state, if you look at the numbers from the fall meet to this meet [$1,850,163 in December compared to $1,526,553 three months earlier]. We accomplished exactly what we set out to do. I'm happy."

The average field size, 7.46 starters per race, was down slightly from the fall meeting, but up over the summer meet. Officials blamed the decline on rainy weather during the winter meet.

Dortmund gets nod in Futurity
Benoit

Two Grade I races for juveniles previously held at Hollywood Park made their Los Alamitos debut this year, with Take Charge Brandi (Giant's Causeway) taking the GI Starlet S. and Dortmund (Big Brown) winning the GI Los Alamitos Futurity.

"If the Starlet and the Los Alamitos Futurity don't give us credibility around the country that we are running quality races, I don't know what will," McKinzie added. "Shared Belief won our first [GI Los Alamitos] Derby, the filly that's going to be the Eclipse Award winner won the Starlet and I think in the Futurity we created one, two and possibly three solid contenders for the Kentucky Derby."

Los Alamitos's second summer meeting will begin July 2 and continue through July 12. The fall meet runs from Sept. 10 through Sept. 25 and the winter meet is scheduled for Dec. 3 through Dec. 20.

DON'T TELL SOPHIA BACK AT OAKLAWN

Don't Tell Sophia (Congaree), a four-time stakes winner at Oaklawn, is back at the Arkansas oval and preparing to attempt a third-straight victory in the Pippin S. Jan. 17. "She looks great right now," said trainer Phil Sims, who also co-owns Don't Tell Sophia. "She's all dappled out."

Don't Tell Sophia is also a two-time defending winner of the Bayakoa S. at Oaklawn. She was second in last year's GIII Azeri S. and third in the GI Apple Blossom H. and was third in this year's GII Azeri. The mare missed this year's Apple Blossom with a quarter crack, but came back with a strong second half of the season, winning the GI Juddmonte Spinster and finishing second in the GI Breeders' Cup Distaff and GII Falls City H.

Don't Tell Sophia
Coady Photography

The 6-year-old was doing so well, Sims said plans for retirement were put on hold and Don't Tell Sophia was in light training in Kentucky before arriving in Arkansas.

"We'll take her through the series here, and if she does well, we'll give her the summer off and then bring her back for a few races in the fall," Sims said. "That will be it."

Following the Pippin, Oaklawn's series of two-turn stakes race for older fillies and mares continues with the Feb. 15 Bayakoa; the Mar. 14 GII Azeri S.; and the Apr. 10 GI Apple Blossom.

SHARED BELIEF WORKS IN FOG

Shared Belief (Candy Ride {Arg}) worked four furlongs in the fog Friday at Golden Gate in preparation for Friday's GI Malibu S. "I didn't actually see the work until the last eighth of a mile because of fog," admitted trainer Jerry Hollendorfer. "But I did get him in :12.04 for the last eighth of a mile. I haven't talked yet with Russell [Baze, who was aboard for the work], but it seemed fine." Shared Belief, last year's champion juvenile, will be looking to rebound from the first loss of his career, a fourth-place finish in the Nov. 1 GI Breeders' Cup Classic. "We'll see what happens," Hollendorfer said. "But I think we're bringing down a very good horse."

John Malone, the chairman of Liberty Media Corp., bought Bridlewood Farm in Florida in August 2013 and is the largest landowner in the U.S. He has also invested significantly in Irish properties; according to The Irish Times, Malone has spent about €150 million on three Dublin hotels and one Limerick hotel. He also bought the Humewood Castle in Co. Wicklow for €8 million in 2012.

Malone has also been busy buying up bloodstock, spending $7.9 million on four horses at Keeneland November. Castlemartin Stud is a proven breeding ground, having housed in recent years the likes of G1 Irish Oaks winner Chicquita (Ire) (Montjeu {Ire}); three-time G1 Canadian International hero Joshua Tree (Ire) (Montjeu {Ire}) and G1 Pretty Polly S. winner Chinese White (Ire) (Dalakhani {Ire}).

GOODWOOD, QATAR IN SPONSORSHIP DEAL

Goodwood Racecourse and Qatar have entered into a 10-year sponsorship deal that is the most significant in the history of British racing. The deal will result in over £2 million being invested into prize money for eight races during the Qatar Goodwood Festival--also known as Glorious Goodwood--in 2015, with a commitment to increases year-on-year. Total prize money for the festival will total £4.5 million next year. The meeting's flagship race, the G1 Qatar Sussex S., will be worth £1 million, up from £300,000 this year. The meeting's other Group 1, the Nassau S. for fillies and mares, is up to £600,000 from £200,000.

The week's three feature Group 2 races, the Lennox S., the Goodwood Cup and the King George S., will each be worth £300,000, and Qatar has guaranteed that if any of those events reaches Group 1 status the purse will rise to at least £500,000.

The meeting's two Group 2s for 2-year-olds, the Vintage S. and the Richmond S., will each be run for £200,000 next year. The Qatar Stewards Cup, the headline handicap of the week, will be worth £250,000.

The Qatar Goodwood Festival will take place July 28 to Aug. 1, 2015.

"I am delighted that Qatar have decided to play a significant part in Goodwood's position as one of the finest racing experiences in the world," said Lord March, owner of Goodwood. "Goodwood has, for more than 200 years, been about the best racing in the most English of settings, accessible to everyone. Our partnership with Qatar will make an enormous contribution to horse racing in the UK."

Hamad Al Attiyah, president of the Qatar Equestrian Federation, added, "Thanks to the wise guidance of His Highness The Emir Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani, Qatar supports sport all over the world. Goodwood is already one of the most iconic sporting festivals of the British summer season and we are delighted to be the title sponsor over the five days."

It was also revealed that at least two Arabian races would be contested at the Qatar Goodwood festival.

JULIA FEILDEN RACING A FAMILY AFFAIR

Just a few minutes away from the bustling equine hub of Newmarket sits the quiet village of Exning, which has attracted its own small enclave of trainers. Among them is Julia Feilden, former leading lady rider and daughter of the late trainer Peter Feilden, who says she "never had any intention to train at all."

Even so, she's made a pretty good fist of it in the 14 years since applying for her licence and, as adept as she is at producing racehorses at the peak of their ability, she's also produced a fine pair of jockeys, her children Ross and Shelley Birkett, who take the bulk of the rides for her 28-horse stable. The warmth and humor of the tight-knit family is hinted at in the 'Meet The Team' section of the yard's website. "Ross still can't find a proper job, so remains Julia's personal slave and does all the jobs no one else wants to do," it states, which seems a little harsh until it transpires that 25-year-old Ross, a sports journalism graduate, edits the website himself.

Julia Feilden and Shelley and Ross Birkett

He is also his mother's assistant trainer and, as such, has recently won the coveted Alex Scott Memorial Scholarship, which provides a bursary each year for one British-based assistant trainer to broaden his or her knowledge overseas. From February, Ross will spend three months on the other side of the world working for Gai Waterhouse in Sydney.

"I was the one who persuaded him to go for the scholarship and now I'm dreading the three months of having to cope without him," says Julia from her peaceful office amid 48 acres of Suffolk countryside.

She is flanked by Ross and Shelley plus two inquisitive terriers, Rolo and Royston, while outside her husband John Birkett busies himself with yard duties, which include spraying each stable with his own fragrant concoction of lavender and eucalyptus to aid the horses' breathing. Happy to remain in the background, John is not just a vital cog in the well-oiled wheels of Julia Feilden Racing, but also runs gallops tours for visitors to Newmarket.

While the yard at Harraton Stud is filled with horses in training, the surrounding paddocks are home to a mixture of those members of the string currently on winter holiday, a couple of broodmares and foals, and a tiny Falabella pony called Bonnie, who regularly accompanies the stable's runners to the races.

"We've gradually built the place up," says Julia, who left her home in Sussex at the age of 18 to work as racing secretary to Clive Brittain and has lived in the Newmarket area ever since.

"We started off with 10 horses. We can only take 28 here, so if we can keep full all the time we just keep ticking along."

It's not uncommon in racing for family members to work alongside each other, and the Feilden-Birkett family seems to tick along more harmoniously than most. Both Ross and Shelley say they love riding for their mother, who clearly appreciates the hard work they put into her business.

"I never have to worry about the owners--they always want to have Shelley or Ross on board and feel upset if they've gone elsewhere," says Julia.

"I can't ride out now because my hip's really bad and what I miss the most is riding work, but it's not too bad as Shelley and Ross are my eyes and ears. I don't have to worry as they're doing it for me and providing good feedback. It makes so much difference."

Her daughter adds, "Mum doesn't give us any orders when it comes to race-riding--we know the horses and we ride them out every day, so she just lets us get on with it." Cont. p10

This will go down as a banner year for both Ross and Shelley. Ross, who rides as an amateur, fulfilled a dream when winning the Investec Amateur Derby at Epsom in August on Barwick. It would prove to be a poignant success as it was the final winner for Barwick's trainer Lady Herries, who died last month. Modestly, Ross says, "I think my horse just swam the best as there was torrential rain on the day. I've been watching the Amateur Derby since I was a kid and I've always wanted to win it. It took me five attempts and it wasn't even on one of mum's horses."

This achievement followed a landmark for Shelley in June when the 20-year-old notched her first stakes success, winning the Listed Newsells Park Stud S. at Newmarket by five lengths aboard Noble Protector. She recalls, "It was amazing. I got a call out of the blue to ride Noble Protector and I won on her at Bath in a handicap. She went up 10 pounds for that so she was good enough to run in listed races. She went to Goodwood and we finished second and then her owners were good enough to keep me on her at Newmarket and she hacked up. It was a fairytale to win my first listed race at my home course--I was so lucky to get the ride on her."

In stakes company, the apprentice was unable to make use of her five-pound weight allowance, but her riding ability has caught the attention of many and with her claim soon to be reduced to three pounds, Shelley is keen to ride for as many different stables as possible.

"I'm riding out for four trainers in Newmarket at the moment, including Roger Varian, and I've also been to ride out for Brian Meehan at Manton and Richard Fahey and Nigel Tinkler in Yorkshire. It's interesting to see how different people train and how their yards operate, and if I can pick up rides it's a bonus."

Despite her admission that training was not her intended career choice, Julia remains resolutely enthusiastic for the job and the horses in her care, who lead a lovely laidback life of exercise in the morning followed by turnout for a roll in the fields in the afternoon.

As we speak, she and Shelley have just returned from a gallops morning at the soon-to-be-reopened all-weather track formerly known as Great Leighs. From Jan. 11, it will be back in operation as Chelmsford City Racecourse and, just an hour from Newmarket, will be a welcome winter boost for local trainers.

She says, "The track is apparently riding really well--Shelley said there was hardly any kick-back--and I'm looking forward to having some runners there. We keep going through the winter with 10 or 12 for the all-weather and then we'll have our full team back in from the new year to start getting ready for the turf season."

She continued, "We're very lucky to be here--it's just out of the hustle and bustle of Newmarket, but we can still use the heath every day. It's 15 to 20 minutes to hack there from here so it's the ideal warm up and warm down."

As Julia prepares to bid farewell to Ross for the short term, she realizes that it's only a matter of time before Shelley, who has currently ridden 46 winners, joins a bigger stable to further her race-riding career.

"Shelley came through the ranks and did pony racing and also rode for a couple of years as an amateur, so by the time she started riding as an apprentice she had quite a bit of experience and it showed," she says with justifiable pride.

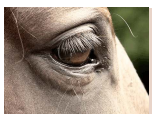

"Long term, it probably is the time for her to move on and ride out her claim for a trainer with more firepower. Once apprentices lose their claim it can be hard to get rides so she needs a bigger stable behind her."

There are plenty of big stables in Newmarket and beyond, and it seems unlikely that Shelley will struggle to find a backer. She'll undoubtedly be missed at home, but her family can remain proud of the fact that any success stems from her formative years spent in one of the friendliest small stables in town.

The narrowness of Dortmund (Big Brown)'s victory over Firing Line and Mr. Z at Los Alamitos surely jeopardizes any chance he might have had of landing the relevant Eclipse Award.

The same can't be said, though, about the performance of Danon Platina, the Deep Impact colt who triumphed in the G1 Asahi Hai Futurity--a race which could accurately be described as the Japanese equivalent of the GI Breeders' Cup Juvenile. Success in this mile test seems to carry an automatic ticket to the JRA's award for champion 2-year-old colt.

The same applies to the fillies' equivalent, the Hanshin Juvenile Fillies, which was contested a week earlier. The winner is invariably named champion 2-year-old filly. As this year's race was won by Deep Impact's daughter Shonan Adela, the exceptional Shadai stallion looks sure to add at least two more champions to his burgeoning list when the JRA Awards are announced in January.

Of course the Breeders' Cup Juvenile has proved a very poor guide to the GI Kentucky Derby, so has the Asahi Hai Futurity proved any more reliable as a stepping stone to victory in the Tokyo Yushun (Japanese Derby)? The answer, sadly, is that it hasn't, as no Futurity winner has gone on to Derby success since Narita Brian over 20 years ago. Perhaps there is simply too big a difference between the distances of the two races, with the Futurity over a mile and the Derby over a mile and a half.

There is still reason for having high hopes of Danon Platina, as the grey has now won the last three of his four starts and has clearly inherited a good measure of Deep Impact's impressive acceleration.

Deep Impact, of course, was a superstar in Japan and his valuation as a stallion reflected his sky-high reputation. He was syndicated for a Japanese record total of ¥5.1 billion, the equivalent at the time of nearly $43 million. His first runners did nothing to diminish his status when they reached the track in 2010, with Deep Impact running out an unchallenged winner, not only of the first-crop sires' championship, but also of the overall 2-year-old sires' championship. Although he didn't sire the winner of the Asahi Hai Futurity, he was responsible for both the second and third finishers.

Danon Platina
JRA

In other words, demand for Deep Impact's services was as high as ever in 2011. Normally the amount breeders are prepared to spend on a stallion season is guided by the value of the mare, the proportion often being around a quarter of the mare's valuation. No such calculations were involved in Danon Platina's production. The colt's dam, Badeelah, had been picked up only months before for as little as $32,000 as hip 1440 in Book 3 of Keeneland's November Sale. Deep Impact's fee never appears to be published, but the gamble of sending such an inexpensive mare to Japan's most sought-after stallion has clearly paid off handsomely.

You don't have to look too hard to see why Badeelah's new owners were prepared to take this gamble. Although Badeelah was only two, and still unraced, when Shadwell decided that she was surplus to requirements, there were elements of her pedigree which were guaranteed to appeal to a Japanese breeder. Badeelah's sire Unbridled's Song had been ably represented on Japanese tracks by Agnes Sonic, a smart sprinter-miler, and more recently by a dirt filly called La Verita, who was to retire with earnings equivalent to $3.6 million.

Although Badeelah was sold for only $32,000, Shadwell had had to pay no less than $4.2 million for her dam Magical Allure when this winner of the GI La Brea S. was sold by the Mabees in 2000.

The price reflected the fact that Magical Allure had built career figures of 12-7-4-1 and was in foal to Storm Cat.

From a Japanese viewpoint, it was arguably more important that Magical Allure was a half-sister to Floral Magic, a stakes-winning daughter of Affirmed. Floral Magic was sent to Japan early in her broodmare career, and was eventually followed by her only American foal, the winning Bel Bolide filly Paper Rain.

Both mother and daughter were to produce top winners in their new home. Floral Magic's best effort was Narita Top Road, who followed up a third in the Japanese 2,000 Guineas and a second in the Japanese Derby with victory in the Japanese St Leger (Kikuka Sho) in 1999. He was also third in the Japan Cup, so was of top international standard.

Narita Top Road's exploits were no doubt responsible for his half-sister Paper Rain's arrival in Japan, where she quickly produced two colts by Deep Impact's sensational sire, Sunday Silence. The second of the two was Maturida Gogh, who developed into a formidable performer at the ages of four and five. His finest victory came in the prestigious Arima Kinen over 1 9/16 miles, and he too ran with considerable credit in a Japan Cup, finishing fourth in 2008.

Maturida Gogh is still in the early stages of his stallion career--his eldest progeny are 3-year-olds of 2014--but he has already shown plenty of potential. Each of his first two crops has already produced a graded stakes winner and he is also responsible for Arma Waioli, the colt who chased home Danon Platina in the Asahi Hai Futurity.

Floral Green, another of Floral Magic's daughters, has also enjoyed success with the Sunday Silence male line. This daughter of Forty Niner was mated to the Japanese St Leger winner Dance In The Dark to produce Danon Yoyo, a horse who numbered a second in the Mile Championship among several good efforts in Group 1 races over a mile.

The story may not be over yet, as Badeerah's second foal is a yearling sister to Danon Platina.

Charles Town Releases 2015 Stakes Schedule:

Hollywood Casino at Charles Town Races announced yesterday a 23-race stakes schedule worth $3.15 million for 2015, once again headlined by the GII Charles Town Classic. That event, along with six other stakes races, will be held Apr. 18 with first post scheduled for 12:45 p.m.

The guaranteed purse for the Classic remains at $1.5 million, but the track has introduced a unique distribution plan for the new year. A third of the purse--$500,000--will be reserved as a tiered participation incentive for horses who have previously won Triple Crown, Breeders' Cup, or Grade I races with a winner of the GI Kentucky Derby or GI Breeders' Cup Classic to each receive $200,000 for finishing the Charles Town Classic. If a horse won the GI Preakness S., GI Belmont S., GI Breeders' Cup Distaff and GI Pacific Classic, they would receive $100,000 and the connections of any other Grade I winner in the field would receive $50,000 depending on how many participants the race attracts. Any remaining money would be added back into the remaining $1 million purse.

"We want to lure some of the top horses in the division to Charles Town for the Charles Town Classic and hope this added wrinkle helps in doing so," said Vice President of Racing Operations Erich Zimny.

The Gill Charles Town Oaks, the second graded event on the stakes docket, will run as the feature of the Sept. 19 Race for the Ribbon program with a purse of $350,000, down from $500,000 last year along with five other supporting stakes.

The calendar also includes 16 stakes restricted to West Virginia-breds worth a total of $800,000. The races comprising the Oct. 10 West Virginia Breeders' Classics will be announced at a later date.

Thornbury, Jr. Memorial Scholarship Created:

The Jeffrey D. Thornbury, Jr. Memorial Scholarship--funded by the Chet and Kim Blackey family--was created by the Horse Farm Workers' Educational Assistant Fund they announced Monday. The Horse Farm Workers' Educational Assistance Fund--started in 1996--provides monetary educational assistance to young people dedicated to the equine industry. Jeffrey D. Thornbury, Jr., 29, was a former Horse Farm Scholar and passed away in a car accident this September.

"Jeffrey displayed exceptional talent and devotion from the foaling stall to the finish line," said Board member Chet Blackey. "His equine excellence was but one facet of a much more sophisticated persona. He was a photographer, outdoorsman and athlete with many other interests, but none higher than his love of dogs, friends, and family. I have never met a man who approached hard work and play with the same indefatigable zeal. It gives the Blackey family great happiness to establish this award in memory of a unique horseman and friend."

Racetrack Veterinarian Association Formed:

Edited Press Release

The members of the North American Association of Racetrack Veterinarians (NAARV) are pleased to announce the recent incorporation of their newly formed organization in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The membership is represented from coast to coast in the U.S. and Canada. The group has organized for the following common goal:

To advance the health and welfare of the racehorse through evidence based veterinary medicine, expand scientific knowledge and the continuing education of the professionals and public involved with the sport.

And to advance the following mission:

To ensure the health and well-being of the racehorse through protecting and improving the veterinary care, treatment and welfare of the equine athlete; to advance the treatment of disease and injury using evidence based medicine, to relieve animal suffering and to be proactive in advocating for and administering preventive veterinary care. Through education programs, the association will provide the opportunity to improve the knowledge and skills of its members and increase the public's awareness of the medical needs of the racehorse and the scientific basis for the practice of equine veterinary medicine.

The racetrack practitioner represents the cutting edge of Sports Medicine for the benefit of the racing equine athlete. As the boundaries of scientific research and clinical knowledge have been pushed back, and racetrack practice has evolved into the modern day model, the perception of the racetrack practitioner has failed to keep pace with the reality. By continuing to practice with the highest level of integrity, and striving to educate clients, the public and regulators, racetrack practitioners can effect change within our industry. The perception of racing veterinary practice should reflect the high standard of integrity and medicine with which it is currently practiced.

Anyone interested in finding out more about the North American Association of Racetrack Veterinarians, can visit the website at NAARV.org.

KUROSHIO TO SHUTTLE TO OVERBURY

Kuroshio (Aus) (Exceed and Excel {Aus})--Arctic Drift, by Gone West), a dual group-winning sprinter in Australia, will shuttle to Overbury Stud for the 2015 Northern Hemisphere season. Kuroshio just completed his first season at stud at Darley Australia where he covered over 100 mares.

A listed winner on debut in Australia's first juvenile stake on the calendar, Kuroshio later added the G3 Blue Diamond Prelude and took the G2 McEwan S. as a 3-year-old. He is out of Arctic Drift (Gone West) and is a full-sister to Believe'N'Succeed (Aus), who was their sire's first stakes winner and who has gone on to produce Group 1 winner Bounding (Aus) (Lonhro {Aus}). Kuroshio's second dam is GI Alabama and GI Test S. winner November Snow (Storm Cat).

Simon Sweeting, manager of Overbury Stud, said, "Exceed And Excel is one of the most coveted commercial stallions in Europe and Kuroshio is both his best sprinting son at stud and his most precocious juvenile yet. He's also Exceed And Excel's only group winner at stud in Britain. What's more, he's got the looks you'd expect of an outstanding speed horse. I'm thrilled that the team at Darley have entrusted Kuroshio to the Overbury team, and I'm really looking forward to showing him off to breeders in the coming weeks."

Kuroshio will stand for £3,500.
