CROWN OF THORNS OFF DERBY TRAIL

A shin injury has derailed B. Wayne Hughes's Crown of Thorns (Repent) from the Kentucky Derby trail, it was revealed yesterday. Trainer Richard Mandella told Daily Racing Form that the colt, a $350,000 juvenile purchase, had the "beginnings of a saucer fracture" in his left fore and would be sidelined for several months. "He'll stay here for a while, then go to Mr. Hughes's farm in Malibu," Mandella explained to the publication. Crown of Thorns was on more than a few Derby watch lists when, after a seven-length romp in a Santa Anita maiden, he captured the GII Robert B. Lewis S. Feb. 2 in his stakes and route debut.

CURLIN CANTERS AT NAD AL SHEBA

Reigning Horse of the Year Curlin (Smart Strike) had his first look at Nad Al Sheba racecourse under exercise rider Carmen Rosas Wednesday morning. The GI Breeders' Cup Classic hero is scheduled to breeze on Sunday or Monday. "Curlin made the trip in good shape," Scott Blasi, assistant to trainer Steve Asmussen, said. "He's doing fantastic and has a lot of energy. The track doesn't have a lot of turn to it, which Curlin will appreciate as he has a tendency to look to the inside." The strapping chestnut remains on target for a Feb. 28 handicap in preparation for the G1 Dubai World Cup Mar. 29. Blasi recognized last term's G2 UAE Derby winner Asiatic Boy (Arg) (Not for Sale {Arg}) as the main danger in the World Cup. "Mike de Kock is a great trainer and Asiatic Boy is an impressive horse; we know he's going to be tough to beat," Blasi continued. "But Curlin is a special kind of horse. He was third in the Kentucky Derby on only his fourth ever start. We expect him to do big things." In related news, HRTV announced yesterday that it would provide live coverage of Curlin's return to the races Feb. 28.

COURT VISION WORKS TOWARD FOY

WinStar Farm and IEAH Stables's Court Vision (Gulch) put the finishing touches on his preparations for his seasonal debut, Sunday's GII Fountain of Youth S. at Gulfstream, with an easy half-mile breeze yesterday. Working at trainer Bill Mott's base at Payson Park, Court Vision stopped the clock in :51 2/5 (8/10). Court Vision, one of several Triple Crown hopefuls in Mott's barn, won three of four last term, including the GIII Iroquois S. and GII Remsen S. He'll be one of the favorites for the Fountain of Youth, his first race wearing the red, white and blue colors of IEAH Stables. That operation bought into the colt from WinStar about three weeks ago. "We know he is coming into this race well, and we are really looking forward to his first race of the year," IEAH Co-President Michael Iavarone said. "We obviously have our sights set on the Kentucky Derby, and hopefully this is a first step toward that goal. From what we've seen so far, the Fountain of Youth doesn't look like it will be an easy race--but we know we fit. We'd love to see him come running through the lane and be along in time." Probable for the Fountain of Youth are Adriano (A.P. Indy), Anak Nakal (Victory Gallop), Cool Coal Man (Mineshaft), Elysium Fields (El Prado {Ire}), Golden Spikes (Seeking the Gold), Kentucky Bear (Mr. Greeley), Make the Point (Menifee), Monba (Maria's Mon), and Ready Set (Touch Gold).

WAR PASS RETURN POSTPONED War Pass (Cherokee Run), the champion two-year-old of 2007, will have to wait at least one more day to make his much-anticipated sophomore debut after his intended comeback race at Gulfstream Park did not attract enough entries. Owned by Robert LaPenta, War Pass was expected to launch his 2008 campaign in a one-mile open allowance race on Saturday. Officials at Gulfstream Park will attempt to bring back the race on Sunday's program and have listed the race, which carries purse money of $60,000, as an extra on Saturday's overnight sheet.

KEENELAND CATALOGUES 191 FOR APRIL

Keeneland has announced that 191 horses have been catalogued for the April Two-Year-Olds in Training Sale, which will be held over two evening sessions this year Apr. 8-9. Sessions will begin at 7 p.m.

"We are very excited about the changes in date and format, which will make the sale more convenient for horsemen," said Geoffrey Russell, Keeneland's director of sales. "First, we've moved the dates forward on the calendar to [GI] Toyota Blue Grass week, when many horsemen are already here. Secondly, we have scheduled only one preview show, as preferred by all. And finally, we believe that dividing the sale into two sessions will allow buyers more time to evaluate the horses."

Keeneland will stream live coverage of the preview day works, as well as both sessions of the April Sale, on www.keeneland.com. Freshman sires Birdstone (Grindstone), Canadian Frontier (Gone West), Cuvee (Carson City), Domestic Dispute (Unbridled's Song), Johar (Gone West), Lion Heart (Tale of the Cat), Medaglia d'Oro (El Prado {Ire}), Pleasantly Perfect (Pleasant Colony), Read the Footnotes (Smoke Glacken), Saarland (Unbridled), Smarty Jones (Elusive Quality), Speightstown (Gone West), Strong Hope (Grand Slam), and Tapit (Pulpit) are slated to be represented.

GO BETWEEN TO BIG 'CAP Successful turfster Go Between (Point Given), who showed a new dimension winning the Sunshine Millions Classic on Santa Anita's Cushion Track Jan. 26, will aim to make it back-to-back $1-million races when he tackles the Mar. 1 GI Santa Anita H. Trainer Bill Mott yesterday confirmed that would be Go Between's next target. "He's doing great," said Mott from his base at Payson Park in Florida. "He'll fly out of here on the 28th. He handled that trip well last time."

☆ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR ☆

Dear Editor,

In his TDN column "Blinded By The Light" (Feb. 20th), Bill Oppenheim was on target, on several fronts, with his typically insightful data-driven commentary. His observations begin by revealing the fundamental obstacle and limitation inherent in trying to make a case for the existence and nature of "true" nicks. As Bill implies, most hypotheses and generalizations about so-called "nicks" are typically formulated on meager and statistically inadequate sample size and therefore have questionable predictive value.

For sure, pedigrees are wonderful things, possess intrinsic beauty, and have the capacity to trigger our fondest memories. Furthermore, their historical significance provides a fascinating source for intellectual stimulation and aesthetic appreciation. And it makes common sense to study them and to think that quality racehorses will beget quality racehorses. Yet if our preoccupation with pedigrees can yield any practical utility, their value would be found in our ability to analyze the historical detail and emerge with an improved probability of achieving a stakes performer from a particular mating. Toward that end, however, it is not descriptively useful to be told that a proposed mating is an A+ or a C or has an index of 71.93. Instead, we need probability statements that are anchored in substantive data. Letter cont. p3

We need to be told that, based on X number of prior identical or closely similar matings, we have an X probability of breeding a stakes horse.

The problem for most "nicking" paradigms is that the number of prior comparisons in most samples is nearly always either too small or too dissimilar to provide a meaningful (statistically significant) predictive correlation. Unfortunately, this doesn't seem to stop us, in the face of uncertainty and great monetary expenditure, from grabbing on to them and seeking comfort in pointing to something that happened some place, some time. But because something happens a couple of times does not mean that it is likely to happen again. A handful of occurrences does not create a statistically viable pattern or a sound basis for statistically significant prediction. Thus, "nicks" derived from small samples are perhaps the most visible poster children for our widespread industry tendency to attribute broad meaning from a small number of events.

In more formal terms, attempting to explain or predict an event based on a small number of occurrences defies the laws of Logical Composition. When we draw conclusions (and base our beliefs) on an insufficient sample size, we are particularly subject to the Fallacy of Composition, which arises when we infer that what is true of a part of something is also true of the whole. This fallacy, in turn, frequently spawns a closely related fallacy which we know, in colloquial terms, as the Hasty Generalization. This fallacy has many false faces and disguises that impinge on us daily. Hasty Generalization examples abound at every turn. Someone says that they have a really good foal by a new stallion, so the word is out that the stallion is getting really good foals. A mare has a bad foal and she "needs to find another home." A trainer has a horse that doesn't work out and he won't buy another by the same sire, etc., etc.

Yet, fallacies related to Logical Composition are not the only logical fallacies that work to reduce our sales scene toward its lowest common denominator. With regard to our irrational obsession with first year sires, for example, we see a prime incidence of the fallacy of Argumentum ad Ignorantium. Simply put, this fallacy occurs when it's argued that something must be true, simply because it hasn't been proved false. How else can we explain the illogic of looking past proven stallions to line up for stallions who haven't even produced a runner? And, of course, we continue to find comfort in numbers and conformity as we embrace the fallacy of Argumentum ad Numerum. Plain and simple, this fallacy asserts that the more people who support a belief, the more likely it is that it is correct. Regards, Rob Whiteley

Editor's Note: Rob Whiteley, a commercial breeder, is owner of Liberation Farm. A former professor, Rob took his statistics and logic classes at Stanford and Harvard and then was a National Defense Research Fellow during his Ph D studies at the University of California, Berkeley.

Last term's G1 Premio Vittorio di Capua winner kicked off the new year with a handicap tally at Nad Al Sheba Jan. 24. "He is in good form and loves this track," trainer Herman Brown said. "Obviously the penalty makes it more difficult, but he will give a good account of himself." Danak makes his first start since finishing sixth in the G1 Arlington Million Aug. 11. The 2007 G3 Amethyst S. victor was fourth in the G1 Tattersalls Gold Cup last May. "He is as fit as we can get him and he has worked well at Nad Al Sheba when we have brought him over," trainer Doug Watson said. "It is a tough race, but we hope he goes well."

DOUG CAUTHEN, PRESIDENT OF WINSTAR FARM:

As was noted by several people, the free market is usually the best vehicle to guide someone's individual program. Our general program, over the five or six years, is to target 125 mares or so for our stallions. That was something we initiated with Tiznow when he first retired. On those years when demand is so overwhelming, we've gone upwards to 150, but we do our budgets and projections on 125 mares.

Doug Cauthen

If you look at Distorted Humor, in the year after he was leading freshman sire, we stood him at a pretty reasonable level--$20,000--and he bred 150 mares. The next year he was in the 140s, and we've continually tried to cut back; now we're around 100. The philosophy behind that is that we're trying to help commercial breeders be successful. As his stud fee has gone up, we've had a lot more end users breeding to him. Whereas the typical stallion's book is made up of commercial mares--maybe 80 percent or even 90 percent compared to end users--Distorted Humor's book is probably 50-50, or maybe even 60 percent breed-to-race customers. So for the commercial breeders, there will be fewer yearlings in the yearlings sales and that creates exclusivity for the product.

We're also very cognizant of getting our customers' mares in to the stallions at the optimum time. We're trying to have a high rate of fertility for our customers and cut back on the number of jumps for our stallions.

Our customers have supported our policies and procedures by coming back, and so the free market is telling us that we're doing it in a way where it makes the customers happy, and we'll continue to do that.

TOM McGREEVY:

Large stallion books (100+) along with stud fees that are too high are both driven by one thing--THE SALES RING. Twenty-five years ago, the horse industry was driven by the end product, which is racing. Without a doubt, the horse industry today is driven by sales and if this becomes the end product, this great sport will not survive.

MICHELLE HUBBS, STILLFORK FARM, LLC:

Personally, I believe the large books drive the prices down as a whole. I also believe that we are no longer breeding for the betterment of the breed. Pinhookers and breeders alike are solely profit motivated and that is not good for the industry as a whole. Limited books with quality mares instead of large books of poor quality mares would benefit the breed as a whole, giving more stallions opportunity as well.

YOU AND I FOREVER (A.P. Indy) is the first foal to race out of five-time Grade I and $2.1-million winner You (You and I). The bay colt is owned by his breeder Edmund Gann, who raced You for the majority of her career and offered her at the 2004 Keeneland November sale carrying this foal in utero. He elected to buy the mare back when bidding stalled out at $2 million. Anewday (Vindication), a half-brother to MGISW Tout Charmant, was a $1-million graduate of last year's Fasig-Tipton Calder sale. GREAT LEIGHS TO OPEN IN APRIL

Great Leighs, Britain's first new racecourse in 81 years, has overcome a catalogue of delays and will stage its first meeting Apr. 4. The Essex track, on the outskirts of London, will host eight further racedays in April after receiving approval from the British Horseracing Authority. "It has been a long, hard journey, but naturally I am delighted at the decision," track owner John Holmes told PA Sport. "I would like to thank the BHA for their encouragement, advice and support, which has been unflagging. One must not expect a grand opening as this is a completely new destination where safety will take precedence. We see Apr. 4 as a soft opening and if we can achieve the headline 'Great Leighs goes off without a hitch' that will be a triumph. We have a further eight fixtures in April, upon which we can build. This will give both us and our operators a steer towards our two-day fixture on May 28-29, by which time our public grandstand and hospitality facilities will be fully operational."

NTRA REPORT FROM CAPITOL HILL

WALDROP TO TESTIFY BEFORE CONGRESS

NTRA president and chief executive officer Alex Waldrop is scheduled to testify February 27 in Washington, D.C. during a hearing on performance-enhancing drugs in sports. The hearing, entitled "Drugs is Sports: Compromising the Health of Athletes and Undermining the Integrity of Competition", is before the congressional Subcommittee on Commerce, Trade, and Consumer Protection.

Waldrop's comments will be posted on the NTRA's legislative site www.SupportHorseRacing.org following the proceedings.

Former Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell released a report December 13, 2007 that led to the upcoming hearing. In his report, Mitchell chronicled steroid use among Major League Baseball players. The hearing will explore his findings, as well as the use of steroids and other performance-enhancing drugs in athletes at all level of sports, including Thoroughbred racing.

The industry has been proactive in working to regulate the use of anabolic steroids in horses through a model rule promulgated by the Association of Racing Commissioners International that has already been adopted by some states.

MM NATIONAL SALE TO INCLUDE SWETTENHAM WEANLING DISPERSAL

The Magic Millions National Sale, which gets underway May 26, received a boost yesterday when it was announced that 41 weanlings from Swettenham Stud would be added to the sale. Sires represented in the Swettenham draft include, Anabaa, Danehill Dancer (Ire), Dehere, Elusive Quality, Encosta de Lago (Aus), Exceed and Excel (Aus), Hussonet, Johannesburg, Redoute's Choice (Aus) and Royal Academy. Magic Millions Managing Director David Chester is pleased with the quality of the youngsters slated for the sale. "Many of these weanlings would be pin-up youngsters at any sale in the world," Chester said. "Everyone knows the Sangster family has developed a number of great Thoroughbred families and these weanlings represent a number of them. Vendors and buyers alike know that the National Sale is now the premier breeding stock sale of the Southern Hemisphere. Whether it's a yearling, a weanling, a race filly or broodmare--the quality lots will hit the buyers thick and fast."
